

Myth:
FSU cannot hold me accountable for my actions on Facebook.

Myth:
Students decide which assignments they should collaborate on.

Fact:
FSU will hold you accountable for your academic conduct on Facebook whether you are an active or passive member of a group where answers are being shared.

Fact:
Instructors decide what assignments students can collaborate on and do so for specific reasons.

facebook & cheating

Myth:
I can trust the “friends” I meet in class-related Facebook groups not to reveal my cheating.

Myth:
It’s okay to share answers to individual assignments and quizzes on Facebook.

Fact:
Students are expected to report all violations of the Academic Honor Policy to the instructor.

Fact:
If you aren’t authorized to collaborate on an assignment or a test, sharing answers is wrong no matter where it happens
- Facebook, email, face-to-face conversations, etc.

Embrace Responsible Freedom...
Learn with Integrity

Academic Honor Policy Committee at:
<http://fda.fsu.edu/Academics/Academic-Honor-Policy>